Known for its tight-knit staff and strong team, the company went through a challenging period following the tragic loss of former operations manager Walter Tavares. "I was the only one left in the office," he says. "I'm manager and mentor, and neither myself nor similar Pest Control teams would be where we are today without him." Tavares' wife, Linda, adds: "He was in no doubt when it comes to his knowledge of the company or the industry. A family business, Pest Control was initially acquired by dad in 1988, and he and his wife Linda ran the business together before I was born," he said. "I'm the manager now and get to lead our team of hard-working staff. Although I'm young, I've been in this industry for 12 years and I'm determined to learn as much as I can to continue to shape our company and ensure it has everything it needs to be successful in the future."

One of the keys to the business' success over the years has been its low staff turnover. Nearly half of its employees have been with the company for more than 10 years. Mr Tavares said: "Their dedication and support over the years has been outstanding. In addition, we are investing in our business, including in new equipment and expanding our range of services to include lawn treatment, pest control, and more. We are also reviewing our processes when it comes to a lot of our administrative tasks."

When asked about what's ahead in the future, Mr Tavares said "change was inevitable, but how you react to the changes is what makes all the difference". Enticing new talent to the company is a priority for Tavares and Bermuda as a whole; it will make our company stand out and attract the best talent.
